analysis processes, isolation and identification of natural products – their role will also include a strong focus on laboratory management. This includes organizing daily operations, maintaining lab equipment and supplies, enforcing safety and quality protocols, and drafting and updating standard operating procedures (SOPs). 8. Selection methods: A global appreciation of the candidates’ merit and motivation (valued from 1 to 10) will be made based on the evaluation of their scientific and curricular track-record, particularly the quality of their research outputs related to the subject area of the present call. This will result in a pre-selection of the three best-scoring candidates scored higher than 7, which will be communicated to the candidates. One or both referees indicated by each of the pre-selected candidates can be contacted at this stage to provide reference letters. An interview may also be carried out, in which case all the pre-selected candidates will be summoned to the interview. The jury will select one candidate among the pre-selected candidates to the position.

In this case, the interview will have a relative weight of 0.2 and the previously communicated score will have a relative weight of 0.8.

The evaluation of the professional track record relates to the relevance, timeliness, quality and adequacy to the current project and will focus on the research activities from the past 5-years that the candidate considers more relevant (as highlighted in their application). This 5-year period can be increased, if justified and asked for by the candidate, on account of disease, maternity/paternity leave, or other duly justified period of unavailability to work.
